IWIF unveils redesigned website

(Towson, Md.)-- IWIF Workers' Compensation Insurance (www.iwif.com), Maryland's largest provider of workers' compensation insurance, launched a redesigned and expanded website today. The driving force behind restructuring the site was to give the various stakeholders of the company easier access to the information they require to successfully interact with IWIF.

"The newly renovated site is tailored to the needs of our various customers and vendors," explained IWIF President and CEO Tom Phelan. "The new site is designed to provide exceptional service and information, as well as improve the ease in which customers and vendors do business with IWIF."

Other new features of the site include well-defined customer portals; a contemporary look; faster eServices login; vastly improved interfacing for agents, business owners and medical providers; and streamlined navigation to make finding information and transacting business with IWIF easier and more efficient. A brand new feature of the site includes the IWIF Safety University, a section that houses helpful workplace safety tools, tips and videos in one convenient location. All IWIF University content is easy to download and free of charge.
